

Research Administration

The Curry School's Office of Research Administration assists faculty, postdocs, and graduate students with the development and submission of grant proposals for internal and external sponsorship of projects. We also work with Curry School staff engaged in the day-to-day administration of proposals and funded projects to ensure compliance with University, state, federal, and sponsor guidelines and regulations. Our goal is to help applicants write the best possible proposal and, if funded, assist applicants in managing the award efficiently and effectively.

Pre-Award Administration

Curry School faculty, postdocs, and students are conducting research in a variety of ways across the school. From individual projects to research labs and centers, where ongoing research is taking place around a specific topic, we are examining closely many elements of the human experience. Below are a few of Curry's most active research centers and initiatives.

- Center for Advanced Study of Teaching and Learning
- EdPolicyWorks Research Center
- Youth-Nex: The Center to Promote Effective Youth Development
- Center for Race & Public Education in the South
- STAR Autism Initiative
